Hongkong, July 3RD, 1882. Now that the first pæins of triumph over the Presidential sanction of the Chinese Exclusion Bill have passed away, the people | port. of the Pacific States are beginning to consider the possible cost of their victory and effect upon their interests. Some of the journals in the Eastern States have freely predicted the failure of the Act. In no country in the world, perhaps, can an Act be rendered so elastic in its interpretation as in Great Republic, and it is clearly not the interest of the vast majority of the American people to persecute and liarass a race that has proved of such signal service in developing the trade and resources of the Western States. At any rate, the girls clearly gain under it better results than the boys. The Base Mission Girls' School, admirably organised and conducted as a boarding school, shews this system to its best advantage, as all the girls are tolerably grounded in the written Chinese character, whilst the facility with which the girls in the highest classes write prose composition in the Hakka vernacular using the Roman character, is a clear proof that there is considerable uneducated children in the Colony. But as all these schools, 23 in number. teach principally the Chinese Classics and supplement the ethical teaching of the Confucian Classics by religious Christian teaching, the work done in these schools has, in my opinion, a high educational value. Until the beginning of last year the Protestant Missions of the Colony held the monopoly of this system of teaching. Last year, for the first time, the Roman Catholic Mission placed one school, worked under this system. under the Grant-in-Aid Scheme, so that now 22 of these schools are Protestant Mission schools and I is a Roman Catholic school. Five of the Protestant Mission schools are under the superintendence of a native catechist and were opened 7 were placed in the first (lowest) standard, and | by him on behalf of a few Chinese merchants 3 in the second. There is m. need to detail the results of the examination of each of these 23 Grant-Aid schools, as the results are summarily tabulated in the comparative Tables appended to this report. But a few general observations, which forced themselves failed in I subject each. Thus, out of 18 boys | into notice lately in connection with these achools. examined, only 7 boys passed. But the failure | may be interesting to the taxpayer and possibly contain useful hints to the managers of these schools. I observed in the first instance, a general steady improvement going on, from year to year in the quality of teaching given in these schools, as well as in their organisation and discipline. As I knew all those of these schools which existed before they were brought under the Grant-in-Aid Code, I am certain that this general improvement in the effectiveness of these schools is principally due to the provisions of the Grant. in Aid Scheme. On the other hand, this scheme arising from some of its provisions. As, for 23.-Only two Protestant institutions toach instance, one-fourth of the annual grant sarned rious to send their own children to school, they Hoklo dialect, whilst no teacher can be found cesan Home and Orphanage is a boarding school ligious teaching which is not examined into nor do not care to give their purchased servant girls able to teach in any two of these dislects. At Wongnaich'ang I can therefore only treat it as an English school. Year. Another objectionable expedient lately prevalence of domestic female servitude in Hong. the combined teaching of English and Chinese, As such it presented 32 boys for examination and resorted to by some of the native teachers of these schools in Class I., also adopted with a view. to obtain a high personal bonus, is the practice of admitting at the beginning of the year, a much larger number of children than there is teaching power to provide for, and to select out of the mass, and to drill in preference, the more intelligent portion of the scholars, but quietly to get rid, by neglect or otherwise, of the unpromising scholars. A further objectionable devise of the same sort is the practice, which oppears more generally to be setting in in all the boys' schools in Class L. and which consists in training boys chiefly for the lower standards of the scheme in which passes can be obtained at the examination with comparative ease, but to bring forward as few scholars as possible for the higher standards in which the risk of failure is much greater. Thus, the liberality of the Code appears to have engendered a mercenary spirit among many of the native masters of schools in Class I., and it seems that this very scheme, which was introconcerned, liable to an abuse tending to lower the standard of education materially. Although the number of these schools and the number of their scholars has very largely increased since 1876, yet the ambicined figures show that the number of scholars annually brought forward into the two highest standards of the Code bas six weeks' imprisonment, the onium to be forleited to the Farmer.

Chan Ying, carpenter, was charged with stealing six brass looks, value 60 cents, the property of Wo Akong, lockmaker, on the 30th street, and some looks were lying by him. The defendant suddenly snatched up six of the looks and ran away with them. The defendant had been three times in gael, and he was sentenced to six months' imprison-

P.C. Thomas James said the defendants were sent down here as deserters from Foodhow by the steamer Antenor. He produced the description of the men.

The defendants admitted the charge, and they were handed over to the military authorities. HOUSE ROBBERY. Tse Achan, coolie, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment for entering the house of a barber named Li Apat, and stealing therefrom a jacket, value $1, on the lat inst. The complainant was lying on his bed in his room with the jacket over him when the prisonar orept stealthild in, enatched up the jacket and made off with it. He was caught by a district

THE RING TRIOK.
Chun Asau, unemployed, was charged with having obtained a silk jacket, value $3, from one Lau Atesk, painter, by means of a trick on the

The trick used was the very common brass trick. The defendant protended to pick up a ring and told the complainant it was worth $15. He then got the dupe to pawn the worthless ring but required that he should leave a silk coat he had with him as eccurity and then cleared off with his coat. The defendant had already been three months in gaol for an offence of an exactly similar character, and he was now sentenced to double that term of imprisonment.

SEIZURE OF GAMBLERS, Thirteen Chinese were brought up on a charge of keeping a public gambling house at Hung Han on the 30th ult. Acting P.S. Charters took a party of police to a house pointed out by an informer at Hung Ham, a but made of loose stones, about 250 yards from the Police Station. He found the defendants gambling there and arrested them. The first, second, and seventh defendants who were managers of the game, were fined $25 each or in default a month's imprisonment, the thirteenth, the master of the bouse was fined $50 or two months, and the remainder were fined $10 each or 14 days. The money and implements to be forfeited, and $10 to go to the informer if sufficient of the fines were paid.

Another case of Guild-interference is reported. and this time with fatal results. It is said that the other day a wheelbarrow-man, who was being employed to convey some foreign goods between a vessel and a godown; was accosted by a man belonging to the guild of those coolies who carry one load between two of them-a class who are perfectly distinct from those called ya-ki, each of whom carries two loads. This man accused the wheelbarrow-coolie of posching on other people's manors; to which the coolie replied that he was being employed by a firm and had nothing to do with any guild or combination whatscover. The other then lifted his bambon and struck the wheelbarrow-man, on the head, killing him on the spot. The Che-heien was immediately sent for, and held an inquest on the body, the result of which was that the assailant was proved to have committed the murder. He was therefore conveyed into the city and will be dealt with according to law .--Daily News.

TIENTSIN.

20th June. There is a new scheme by the various opinm railds to petition the Indian Government to reduce the opium duty in India to enable them to compete with Chinese opium.

According to the reports of the China Merchants' S. N. Co.'s engineers they have found the comparison of Kaiping Coals with Takasima as follows: 12 ton Kaiping is equal to 1 ton Takasima. Those that lately came down are far inferior to Japan coals; those before reported upon may have been a part of the 500 tons Ja an coal sent to Kaiping. Mr. R. B Burnett reports having found iron ore at Wuhn and extraordinary Anthractite ocal, which will serve the purpose of melting the iron ore; the ore existing there was long known and the works to be put up at Hwangshi-kang had to be stopped for want of coals. Another gentleman was months trying to find coal, surveying all the hills, but Mr. Burnett had the good luck to find it in a month's time. There is no doubt that the Kaiping coal fields possess a better quality of coal than those at Ton San at the Tong mine; this fact heing known it is to be hoped that Mr. Tong King-sing will also sink a shaft at Kaiping, for anyhow if they have worked on 8 miles towards the Kaiping coal fields they will as a rule have to sink a shaft .- Shanghai Mercury Correspondent.
